Greenspan To Testify Before House Financial Services Committee

House Financial Services Committee Chairman Michael G. Oxley (OH) has announced that Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan will testify before the Committee on Wednesday, July 18 at 10 a.m. in room 2128 Rayburn Building.

"The economy has been in a difficult period. Many believe it is poised to revive with the help of both monetary and fiscal policy actions that have been taken," said Oxley.

As required by a recent provision of law, the Federal Reserve Board Chairman must appear before the congressional committees of jurisdiction twice a year.
